Dear Mr. Szabadfi,

following a conversation I had with Mr. Menyhart I understand that you find the criticism of Police actions so far as regards my sister's murder offensive.

I am not aware that I have been acting in anyway offensively.

I disagree that difference of opinion is offensive, but am quite willing to discuss the matter with you and iron out any misunderstandings that may have arisen. As a humanitarian activist working sometimes in conflict resolution I am a great believer in dialogue.

Please let me assure you that no offense has been intended.

However, the British Police come in for a huge amount of criticism and they have never threatened anyone with prosecution for 'offense' , when their actions have been in question.

Looking forward to hearing from you,

Kind regards,

Yours sincerely,
